Council agrees to loan for youth sports field

The Upland City Council Monday night reached a loan agreement with the Hilltoppers Girls Softball League and indicated its willingness to do the same for Upland - Foothill Little League in the development of three playing fields.

Following the recommendation of the city's Recreation Committee, the council agreed to a five - year contract for the Hilltoppers to pay back $4,337 in equal installments with the first payment due July 1,

In taking this action, the council erased some $6,500 in city expense incurred toward the development of two diamonds for the girls' softball league in the greenbelt park just south of 15th Street.

City Manager Lee Travers noted the Recreation Committee said the $6,500 expense was due to relocating the two fields from planned southerly sites in the greenbelt

The Hilltoppers' fields and the Little League diamond were moved from planned locations in the greenbelt park last year because of concern over the possible hazard to air safety. Light standards were to be near the approach for Cable

Council reduces hours of service

In cost - cutting moves, the city of Upland has reduced the number of hours the Upland Public Library is open and counter service for the city's planning, engineering and building departments.

New library hours are noon-9 p.m. Monday and Tuesday, 9:30 a.m.-6:30 p.m Wednesday and Thursday and 1-5 p.m Friday and Saturday. The library remains closed Sundays. The reduction in library hours was one of the steps the council took in adopting the city budget June 26 under the impact of Proposition 13. Total hours were cut from 641/2 to 44

Counter service at the three departments at City Hall were reduced by three hours a day. Representatives of the planning, engineering and building departments will continue to be available to answer questions 8 a.m. - 2 p.m. The departments will continue to respond to telephone calls 8 a.m.-5

The City Council had briefly discussed closing City Hall to non employees for half the day when officials were preparing a budget anticipating no state funds

The idea was dropped last week when officials learned that Upland expects $1.8 million - $2 million in property tax allocation and state surplus assistance.

Airport to the east.

At the council meeting June 5, Mayor George Gibson called the Hilltoppers "a victim of circumstances," but the council continued consideration until after adoption of the 1978-79 budget and learning how much money the city would receive under the state Jarvis relief measure.

Travers had recommended the Hilltoppers bear the entire cost, but noted "I'm in the minority.

The council told representatives of the senior division of the Upland -Foothill Little League the city is ready to loan the league $25,000 for lighting a new baseball diamond at Memorial Park

Dwayne Smith, vice president of the league, had told the council the league would go ahead with the field development without the loan, but added delay in purchasing lights would mean curtailing play.

The league would need four or five years to build up enough cash to buy the lights outright, Smith said.

He told the council the Little League's first obligation would be to pay back the $25,000 loan, even if repayment meant the league would have to forgo use of the lights to save on utility expenses.

However, Smith said he did not foresee the necessity to delay use of the lights once installed. He estimated the league's annual lighting bill at $3,000.

The council delayed final action on the loan - to be paid back in equal installments over five years so that Smith could bring the actual contract before the Little League board for review. Final action is expected at the council meeting July Councilwoman Ina Petokas cautioned the youth sports organizations that loans and other financial assistance would no longer be routinely granted by the council due to fiscal belt tightening under Proposition 13.

Gibson agreed that Upland would be less able financially to respond to future requests.

Mayor Pro Tem John McCarthy noted that historically the city has absorbed the cost of field development after the sports groups could not meet payments cited in verbal agreements.

Later, he said, the council started to insist upon written performance agreements to keep the city from getting stuck with the financial

In other action, the council expressed concern over a proposed shopping center in San Antonio Heights just north of city limits.

Travers told the council the San Bernardino County Planning Commission was scheduled to review a request Wednesday for a zone change from residential to commercial use for 0.9 acre on Euclid Crescent West

However, he noted that once this lot is combined with the existing 3.9 - acre center and other commercially zoned land to the south, the total development would be about six acres.

The area is on the northwest corner of Euclid Avenue and 24th Street, situated in Upland's sphere of influence.

Travers said the proposed center poses traffic problems, landlocks one parcel from adequate access, overlooks possible traffic conflict with the state Forestry Department fire station across the street and has a design "image incompatible with Upland.

The council requested the county Planning Commission allow the rezoning to be reviewed by the Upland Administrative Committee and Architectural Commission before taking action

Special support comes from similar experience

Parents of disabled children assist others

By Don Green

Parents of a developmentally disabled child face the initial shock of discovering their son or daughter will probably never be normal and the difficult, ongoing task of adjusting to this harsh reality. A new program serving western San Bernardino and Riverside counties and eastern Los Angeles county offers parents a unique form of counseling when they need it most from other parents who have undergone the same experience.

The Community Outreach Parent Educators (COPE) program trains parents of developmentally disabled children to act as counselors. The program is a free service of the Ontario - Pomona Association for Retarded Citizens (OPARC), 9160 Monte Vista Ave., Montclair.

Judy Cook, a public health nurse United States. at OPARC and coordinator of the infant and parent programs, and Jo. Ann Travers, former principal of OPARC and parent educator for the training session, last week explained the need for the project and how the counseling works.

Mrs. Cook said parents themselves had expressed the need for such a program leading to the idea for COPE

Parents always talk about how the situation was handled at the time of diagnosis - usually not well and that stays with them the rest of their lives.

The empathy and knowledge offered by parents who have been through the experience of learning their children have developmental disabilities - such as mental retardation, cerebral palsy, epilepsy and autism - are the strengths of the program, she said.

Mrs. Cook said the parents receive emotional support from their counselors and learn that they are "not the only ones in the world" to discover their children are developmentally disabled.

Mrs. Travers explained that parents face feelings of guilt and are 'confronted with their value systems" when told of the diagnosis.

Because their expectations for the child are so drastically altered, the child "dies in their mental image," she said. Mrs. Travers added that grief, re - examination of values and change in life style follow.

She said, "Parents say professionals have a role to play, but are considered to be outsiders and will always be outsiders - the closeness comes from the other parents.'

Besides their natural empathy. counselors take a six - week, 18 hour training course in which they learn about various disabilities, how best to help "new" parents and community resources available.

Mrs. Travers - who is using the training manual she has written as her master's thesis at Pacific Oaks College — said the parent training program is unique in that it covers a broad range of developmental disabilities.

However, she pointed out that a counselor, or sometimes a husband and - wife team, are usually matched with parents facing the same disability.

Mrs. Cook said that although the majority of parents receiving assistance have recently born children, the COPE service has been made available to parents of children up to 6 years old

Mrs. Travers identified building communication skills as a vital part of the training and another example of how COPE differs from other parent - counselor programs in the Role playing is used extensively. Mrs. Cook stresses the importance of listening and nonverbal communication, and with Mrs. Travers enacts hypothetical

Then the parents take turns acting out roles of "new" parents and counselors. The group evaluates the interaction, and later the parents write their own scripts for role playing.

Mrs. Travers said the training emphasizes only a few "don'ts," such as don't talk about the medical aspect of the disability and don't unload your problems on those you are counseling.

'They're very concerned about doing a good job," she added

The training course includes films and speakers who are experts in their fields. An ongoing part of COPE is the monthly rap sessions the parents hold at OPARC.

Since the program began last October, 55 parents have been trained as counselors and have helped in 17 referrals. The project is funded by a $30,000 grant from the state Department of Health through August, after which OPARC hopes to continue the program with local funding sources, Mrs. Travers said. In addition to the training manual, a film on the pilot project will be available to other interested organizations

Mrs. Cook said COPE has made relatively few referrals in part because the program is new and word has not gotten around. She and Mrs. Travers also said that building acceptance of COPE in the professional community has Mrs. Cook said doctors tend to concentrate on the medical aspect of the disability, at times overlooking the emotional support parents need. She noted that parents of children with similar disabilities have talked to each other without a formal program in the past. Mrs. Travers said, "I think that's (lack of training) what worries physicians COPE is taking its case to the professionals. An all - day forum at Chaffey College last month brought together parents and professionals to examine the needs of families with disabled children.

Mrs. Travers said, "The parents are assertive of their abilities and want to show the MDs they are viable paraprofessionals.

However, he said that the ordinance establishing the district would require study of the zones to set up assessment hearings. The council took no formal It'll cost you.

Cost you a bundle if you're air conditioned. Because vour air conditioner runs on electricity. And these days that's something worth conserving.

So when you turn on the cool, make sure you keep your cool.

When you step outside, shut the door after you. And be sure your windows are closed. Air conditioning the outdoors simply cools off the birds and the bees. At your expense.

Check your thermostat. It registers dollars as well as degrees. Try setting it a bit higher – 78° or more. Air conditioning should keep you comfortable, not cold.

Insulate your attic. If you don't, it's like leaving the lid off your ice chest. You lose your cool.

There are other ways to take a load off and save money. Weatherseal your windows. Pull draperies on the sunny side. Plant shrubs and trees to shield direct sun rays.

Board says: too expensive

Call for clinic bids delayed

Complaining that it was too expensive, county supervisors delayed a call for bids Monday on a proposed expansion of the family practice clinic at the county medical center in San Bernardino.

The cost of the three-trailer addition is estimated at $131,000. It would add 2,160 square feet to the clinic's present 3,100 square feet. The supervisors decided to refer the project to County Administrative Officer Earl Goodwin for further study.

The family practice clinic is one of the busiest places at the county medical center. Families who cannot afford care or receive care elsewhere come to this part of the county medical center to see doctors.

The clinic is where many of the center's doctors-intraining (residents) work, since three-fourths of them are enrolled in the family practice residency program. "I agree that the cost (of clinic space) is exorbitant," Dr. Carl Jansen, the center's interim medical director, told the supervisors. But we needed it yesterday. I'd hate to face the (family practice residency) accreditation board again. Jansen said part of the emergency room is being used for the family practice clinic, which takes space from another vital service. Supervisors' Chairman Robert O. Townsend of Chino said, "I'd hate to see us jeopardize our county medical center family practice accreditation over the cost of construction.... I hope the board members are sympathetic Supervisor Joseph Kamansky of Upland offered a proposal that would have authorized the county Public Works Agency to seek bids for the project. It would not commit the supervisors to awarding a construction contion time. Blanks are

But his motion failed for lack of a see "I'm not unsympathetic," Supervisor Dennis L. Hansberger of Yucaipa said. But he and Supervisor James L. Mayfield of Apple Valley argued that the cost was simply too high, even considering its planned uses

District will reconsider school bus service cut

By FRANK FERTADO Partial restoration of school bus service, particularly in areas where "unusual exist, may be possible by the time school begins in the fall.

The Chaffey Joint Union High School District Board of Trustees said Monday it would reconsider cuts it made last month in bus transportation once the district's financial standing is better known.

Board President Adrian Chalfant held out a glimmer of hope to parents concerned over reduction of bus service when he said board members are considering a change in regulations it established earlier.

Last month, trustees adopted a policy requiring that students live at least four miles from a high school campus before they are allowed to ride district buses. Previously, all students living further than two miles were provided with transpor-

Lillian Rodriguez, director of Project HOY (Help Our Youth), appeared before the board Monday to protest the board's action.

Ms. Rodriguez told trustees she had 76 signatures from parents concerned about their children being forced to walk to school in the fall.

Explaining the majority of her signatures came from parents living in North Town in Rancho Cucamonga, Ms. Rodriguez said students in that area will be forced to walk to and from school in the dark because of the extended-day scheduled at Alta Loma High

Parents, she said, were worried about safety, regularity of attendance and increased vandalism with the reduced transportation

'They are also very concerned that some girls will be walking home in isolated areas. That will be putting their daughters in a dangerous situation," Ms. Rodriguez said.

Chalfant, who said he had polled board members individually, explained the board would probably reconsider the district's transportation program later this summer.

Representing bus drivers, Liz Hicks, president of the California School Employees Association, said her group objected to cuts made in bus service.

"I'm glad to hear you say you are considering something new," Hicks

District administration, on the suggestion of a school bus driver, said they would also study the feasibility of a program where parents paid for bus transportation provided for their children.

Meanwhile, the board delayed a decision on purchasing liability insurance when it learned the price of a new one-year premium had increased to $314,944 from the $250,000 the district paid last year.

Trustees agreed to study the matter at their July 17 boatd

Seventh-day Adventist

Christian Record Braille Foundation's ministry to the blind will be marked Saturday at the Covina Seventh-day Adventist Church, 1067 Badillo, Covina. Sponsored by the denomination, CRBF has provided free services to visually handicapped since 1899. Services include: Braille books and magazines, tapes, cassettes, "full vision" books (with Braille and regular print for sighted children of blind parents), and large print publications. CRBF National Camps for Blind is a network of 35 camps for blind youngsters, free to all blind without regard to race or creed. Now in its 11th year, the camping program has a camp at Yosemite and one in the San Bernardino mountains. Last year, two "Nu-Vision" camps for multi - handicapped blind and seven adult camps were also held. These camps provide youngsters with many experiences denied them otherwise: crafts, beeper baseball, archery, touch and feel nature trails, skiing, boating, horseback riding and swimming, among CRBF representatives say a minimum of 500,000 registered blind are in the United States and Canada, and 45,000 - 50,000 become blind each year. A network of 100 district representatives seek these out each year. They serve an important social contact, helping with individual problems and as a referral service. A person is legally blind if unable to read newsprint lettering and sight impaired if some problem limits the extent of vision. Interested persons can write Christian Record Braille Foundation, Box 6097, Lincoln, Nebraska 68506 if they know of a person who should have these services. I have a friend who has a mission in life. In fact, it's a sacred mission. Her mission is to convert all the Jews into Christians. It's a mission she "feels." One that she thinks is important in the world scheme of things. One that she's been doing - or, rather, trying to do - for over twenty years. Early conversion - and there have been only a few since she began - is a victory for the forces of "righteousness"; there are no defeats.

Although most Jews have no interest in conversion after all, Jews had their religion, culture, and basic world-views long before Christianity began - most will tolerate her. She's nice enough. Friendly enough. And she does spend money. Lots of money trying to convince Jews that theirs is not the true faith; that they can never enter the kingdom of heaven without baptismal blessings.

religion - organized or not - has tried, at one time or another, to convert the Jews; if not by reason, then by force.

The Egyptian, Babylonian, Greek, and Roman civilizations had attempted to destroy the Jewish culture; all had failed.

From the first century. A.D., the religious sect called "Christians" claimed that a Jew named Jesus was, in fact, the Messiah a doctrine firmly denied by most Jews.

But these first Christians, most of whom had been Jews, never gave up the hope that Jews could be converted into seeing what the Christians believed to be the truth. So, for two She spends money for centuries, they tried - and for two centuries they fail-

Stuffed zucchini an affair for vegetable lovers

There'd be a lot more vegetable lovers in the world if they had more chance to try stuffed vegetables. Especially stuffed zucchini or eggplant. And most especially, when these vegetables are stuffed Italian

Italian cooking has a way of setting the taste buds tingling as soon as the first savory aromas are sensed. Much of the secret, of course, lies in their seasoning - the blending of pungent cheese and delicate herbs, the accents of garlic and onions, tomatoes, olives and

These stuffed vegetables each share a special touch - bread crumbs in the filling as well as the topping which makes the finished dish as appetizing to look at as it is flavorsome to eat. Italian-style bread crumbs are used because this product is a two-fold convenience combining the function of the crumbs with a traditional cheese and herb seasoning that makes the whole dish unmistakeably Italian. Zucchini Imbottiti

(Stuffed Zucchini)

½ pound sweet Italian sausage links 3 tablespoons olive oil, divided

1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce, divided 1 cup Italian style bread crumbs, divided Cook zucchini in boiling, salted water to cover until tender but firm, about 5 minutes. Drain and cool. Cut a lengthwise slice from each zucchini. With the tip of a spoon or serrated grapefruit knife, scoop out the pulp leaving a 1/4-inch thick cups (use remaining in soups). Remove sausage from casing. In a medium skillet heat 1 tablespoon of the olive oil. Add sausage and reserved pulp. Cook over mediumhigh heat until meat is browned, about 5 minutes. Drain off drippings. Add 1/4 cup of the tomato sauce; bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer, covered, for 15 minutes. Meanwhile, preheat oven to 350 F. Stir 3/4 cup of the bread crumbs into the sausage mixture; spoon into the zucchini shells. Place in a shallow greased baking pan. Bake, uncovered, for 20 minutes. Mix remaining 2 tablespoons olive oil with the remaining 1/4 cup bread crumbs. Sprinkle over the zucchini. Bake until golden, 8 to 10 minutes. Heat and serve remaining tomato

Melanzane Ripiene (Stuffed Eggplant)

2 medium-sized eggplants (11/4 lb.

Water

1 cup chopped tomato 1 cup plus 2 tablespoons Italian style bread crumbs, divided

1/2 cup chopped pitted black olives 4 anchovy fillets, chopped (optional)

2 tablespoons olive oil

Preheat oven to 350 F. Cut eggplants in half lengthwise. Salt liberally; let stand for 30 minutes; scrape away moist salt. Scoop out and reserve puply center from the eggplant, leaving a 1/2-inch thick shell. In a large saucepan bring 3 quarts water to a boil. Add eggplant shells; simmer uncovered, until slightly softened, about 2 minutes. Drain upside down on paper towels. Chop enough of the reserved eggplant pulp to measure 1 cup (use remains in casseroles, stews, etc.). Combine tomato, 1 cup of the bread crumbs, olives, and anchovies with chopped eggplant pulp; mix well; spoon into eggplant shells. Place in a greased baking pan. Bake until eggplant shells can be easily pierced with a fork, about 15 minutes. Combine remaining 2 tablespoons breadcrumbs with olive oil. Sprinkle over eggplant. Bake until crumbs are golden brown, 8 to 10 minutes. Yield: 4 portions.

California's golden fruit is back

'Peachy-keen' summer treats

ficially begins when the first fresh peaches arrive in their markets. Well, get out your warm weather gear, for the golden fruit from California is back

Fresh California peaches, baked in a dessert crisp or pie, frozen in ice cream, or whipped in a frothy blender drink, fit into any summer menu plan. And, for fresh peach flavor all year long, now is the time to be making up batches of fabulous peach jams or conserves. Juicy, ripe California peaches will be in good supply until early fall, ready for you to enjoy in countless ways.

When selecting fresh California peaches for any purpose, be sure to choose those that are blemish - free with a creamy background color and yield to very gentle hand pressure. Remember that the blush on some peaches is an indication of variety. not of ripeness. To ripen peaches at home, keep them at room temperature for a day or so. When they're ready to eat. Peachy Melba Crown 1 package (3 ounces) raspberry flavor gelatin

13/4 cups water 11/2 tablespoons lemon juice, divid-

1 envelope unflavored gelatin 4 fresh California peaches (about 112 pounds)

2 cup sugar

1 cup dairy sour cream In saucepan over medium heat. dissolve raspberry flavored gelatin in 134 cups water. Add 1/2 tablespoon of the lemon juice. Pour into 11/2 quart mold. Chill until syrupy. Meanwhile in small saucepan, soften unflavored gelatin in 1/4 cup water; then dissolve over low heat. Set aside. Halve and pit about 11/2 peaches (unpeeled). Slice into blender container. Whirl smooth (there should be 11/2 cups puree). Add dissolved gelatin, sugar, remaining 1 tablespoon lemon juice and sour cream. Blend smooth. Slice remaining peaches (peeled, if desired). Stir into syrupy layer in mold. Pour sour cream mixture on top. Chill until firm. To serve: unmold onto platter: garnish with frosted grape clusters, if desired. Cut into wedges. Makes 8 servings.

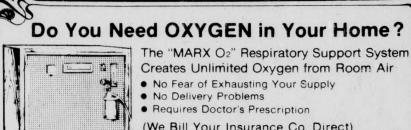

STUFFED VEGETABLES Zucchini shells filled with a savory mixture of sausage and packaged Italian - style bread crumbs are delicious as a hot antipasto or meat accompaniment. Eggplant is another vegetable which tastes even better stuffed. But don't forget that Italian touch. That's the secret of the wonderful flavor treat.

Desert land recreation use local public forums scheduled

A series of public forums on supply and demand for desert lands and resources has been scheduled by the California Desert Conservation Area Advisory Committee.

The committee, which advises the U.S. Interior Department's Bureau of Land Management on preparation of a long - range plan for the desert conservation area has scheduled the meetings for San Bernardino and Riverside during the remainder of

The forums will focus on critical issues to be considered in the plan, and will follow the general format of a seminar on desert recreation held in San Diego in February which attracted more than 300 people. Five panels outlined interests, concerns and desires of various recreational groups and activities, the responded to questions from the committee and the public at that session. 'We're seeking answers to how the desert's limited supply of resources can be allocated among the seemingly unlimited and conflicting demands upon them," said Genny Smith, Chairperson of the Advisory Committee's Public Participation Subcommittee.

We want to hear the public's views on the issues, as well as suggestions for speakers and panelists with knowledge of the resources and the demands upon them," she said.

Mrs. Smith urged that suggestions be addressed to the committee members who are serving as chairpersons of the panels. The schedule, topics, and chairpersons

Sept. 27-29, San Bernardino: Concerns of desert communities and residents; land tenure adjustments; military bases; special concerns of native Americans; cultural resources - historical, archaeological, aesthetic. Co -Chairpersons: Frank DeVore, 8537 Jackie Drive, San Diego 92119, (714) 232-4252; and Erna Schuiling, 3577 Lugo Avenue, San Bernardino 92404, (714) 882-9806

Nov. 30-December 2, Riverside: Natural resources - soils, plants and wildlife; grazing; scientific research and educational use of the desert; and impacts on resources. Co - Chairpersons: Richard Jahns. 2312 Barnner Drive, Menlo Park 94025, (415) 497-2544; and Wilbur Mayhew, 6727 Mt. Whitney, Riverside 92506, (714) 787-5917 or 5904.

Mrs. Smith noted that time is critical because the Federal Land Policy and Management Act of 1976. which established the California Desert Conservation Area, gave the Bureau of Land Management only four years to complete a regional land and resource plan of unparalleled size and scope.

She said forums or seminars in 1979 will continue to complete a regional land and resource plan of unparalleled size and scope.

She said forums or seminars in 1979 will continue to seek public involvement on problems of implementing the final plan, making a plan that provides for sharing the desert while protecting it, and the planning process, including coordination with governments plans.

Foliage plants add color, texture to garden

Think of a flower garden and you naturally picture marigolds, zinnias, petunias and many other annuals with bright blooms. Burpee Seed Co. horticulturist Caroline Whitenack suggests, however, that you can expand the beauty and interest of your floral borders by including easy-to-grow foliage plants. What are some of the best to add color and texture contrast?

Coleus immediately comes to mind and is probably the most popular. Little wonder, it's so versatile and vivid. The plants with their brilliantly patterned leaves are flashy in sun or shade. You'll especially appreciate how coleus can transform problem shady spots into kaleiodoscopes of color.

Use it to beautify areas along the north or east sides of your house or garage, or in containers on shady porches or patios, even under trees.

Coleus can also take direct sun and summer heat in your garden. Not only are the many colors and intricate patterns so eye-catching. The foliage shapes of different varieties of Coleus are also intriguing. . . Saber with long, lancelike leaves; Carefree with finely lobed foliage somewhat like an oak leaf; Rainbow with broader, pointed, tooth-edged leaves. All types are interesting, last until frost in outdoor plantings, all year round if grown indoors. Coleus is just as much a favorite houseplant as it is a garden subject.

Less flamboyant than Coleus but more subtle are the Dusty Millers. Their plush, gray-green to silvery white leaves add interest to the garden scene in many different ways. One of the taller types, horticulturally known as Centaurea gymnocarpa, grows about two feet high and is charming intermingled with annual flowers toward the rear of the border.

Several shorter varieties, including Cineraria Maritima Diamond, are excellent for edgings, rock gardens or pots. All the Dusty Millers with their velvety foliage are wonderful foils to enhance the color of flowers both in the garden and in arrangements. Pastels and brilliant shades alike take on extra

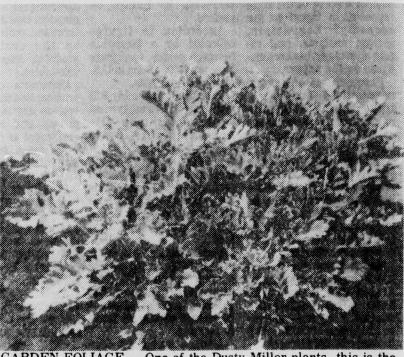

Try Dusty Miller with blue ageratum, red dianthus, orange marigolds, and many other combinations that strike your fancy. The contrast of colors and textures is delightful.

How about a temporary summer 'hedge" or background for annual flowers? Kochia, commonly called Burning Bush, may be just the answer. The symmetrical plants grow about 21/2 feet tall, are ovalshaped and resemble small ornamental evergreens. An added - their fine, light green foliage turns bright crimsoncarmine in late summer and fall.

For tall, stunning accents it's hard to beat Amaranthus or Summer Poinsettia. Plants reach a height of about 3 feet and are a striking combination of colors all summer long. The variety Early Splendor

Gloriosa daisies provide beauty For carefree beauty in from other plants are taken in stride.

DELIGHTFUL DAISY - Created from black-eyed susans by the W. Atlee Burpee Co. in 1957, Gloriosa daisies come of age this year with large blooms, rugged stamina and a diversity of colors.

Heat, drought, poor sandy soil and competition

it's hard to beat Gloriosa diasies. These garden cinderellas have been created from wild blackbreeders developed Gloriosa daisies with the aid of colchicine. This preparation often doubles number chromosomes or carriers of heredity in plant tissue. The result is tetraploid beauties combining the rugged stamina of their wild ancestry with much larger size blooms, more diversity of colors and combinations in the petals and centers, and even a new, double type of flower.

Choose from Double Gold with rich golden yellow, ball-shaped blossoms; Irish Eyes, unique single, golden yellow daisies accented with emerald green centers; Pinwheel, whirling in striking bicolor patterns of mohogany and gold; Golden Daisy, if you prefer a separate shade for your garden decor; or enjoy the smorgasbord of mixed colors.

Gloriosa daisies often will survive where other varieties of flowers give up. Heat, drought, poor sandy soil, competition from tree and shrub roots, zero winter weather .. Gloriosa daisies not only take these difficult conditions in their stride, they come up smiling with their cheerful blooms year after year. Gloriosa daisies are perennials 21/2 to 3 feet tall, but they can be grown as annuals. Often they will the yard year after year, blossom the first season from early sown seeds. Plants then live over the winter to flower for a long time the next summer and eved susans and were first in succeeding years. introduced in 1957. Flower Gloriosa daisies do like a sunny location.

SECTION 2. Declaration of Urgency. This City is authorized to charge a fee or tax to those businesses which are used to pay for the cost of government, including the cost of maintaining public streets, providing open-space, and other related services. The City has prepared its budget for the coming fiscal year and has determined that it is necessary to provide additional revenues to the City in order to meet its anticipated expenses. The City Council has now determined that it is necessary in order to maintain the solvency of this City and to provide the services which are required and complete the capital funding program which has been undertaken, that there be an increase in the business license taxes paid by businesses which conduct business in the City. In order that these taxes, which are necessary for the usual and current expenses of the City, shall be effective by July 1. 1978, this Ordinance is adopted as an urgency ordinance as provided by the provisions of Section 36937 of the California Government Code, and the same shall take effect immediately upon its adoption.

ARE YOU OPERATING UNDER A FIGTITIOUS BUSINESS NAME?

If you are, are you aware that the California Business and Professions Code requires you to do the following:

1. File a fictitious business name statement with the county clerk in the county where you have your principal place of business. 2. Have the statement published once a week for four weeks in a newspaper circulating in the area where you are doing business.

3. File a new statement on or before December 31 of the fifth year after the year in which the original statement was filed.

The purpose of this statute is to allow the public to know the true identities of those with whom it has business dealings. Filing is also in your best interest since in the event of non-compliance you will be prevented from maintaining any action on an account or contract or with regard to any transaction that you have had while operating under your
